

Elim Wong is a thirteen-year-old violinist from Plano, Texas. She followed her passion for music by beginning her journey of violin studies at age of four. She has since studied with Paul Landefeld, Jan Sloman, Eunsong Koh, and Shannon Lee. Recently, Elim received third place at the 2024 MTNA National Junior String Performance Competition after placing first in the South-Central regional and Texas state competitions. Last year, Elim won her first Grand Prize at the Collin County Young Artists Competition which granted her the opportunity to perform with the Plano Symphony Orchestra. She has also won first place at the 2023 Vernell Gregg Competition Junior Division and the 2022 DTMA Dallas Symphonic Festival Elementary Concerto Division. Aside from playing the violin, Elim enjoys singing. Last year, she was fortunate to be chosen for the child solo part at the Dallas Symphony's EarthX-The Way of the Rain concert as part of the DSO Children's Chorus. In her free time, Elim enjoys reading, painting, figure skating, and learning about history.
